

Old Market, Hereford is an open-air retail and leisure Local Centre in the heart of Hereford. The Leisure offer includes a 6 screen Odeon cinema and several restaurants and cafés including our destination, Miller and Carter.

In we go , our tables are upstairs, and yes there is a lift.

Arriving at the top of the stairs we are shown to our reserved tables, asked what we would like to drink and menus are handed out.

TREAT YOURSELF
FIXED PRICE
lunch

One course from £8.95, two courses
from £11.95 or 3
courses from only £14.95

STARTERS

MAIN COURSES

If you choose to go the 2 course way, you decide if you are having a starter or a dessert with your main course. Having carefully looked at the starters you will need an equally careful look at the desserts. I know that some of you, me included will 'go for' the 3 course option, and no, you cannot order three desserts as three courses; I have tried and failed.

MAIN COURSES

MAIN COURSES

MAIN COURSES

TEMPTING

DESSERTS

EVEN MORE

TEMPTING

DESSERTS

Having taken your time over the selection of your lunch, then treating it with deserved respect, it is time for all good things to come to an end. You now need to settle your bill and when everyone is ready and listening; yes including

YOU

I will ask you to make a decision.

We have about two and a half hours before we start back for our train, and the time is yours to fill. There are a number of very interesting places to visit and things to do. We shall stop on the way back to the station for a final drink, coffee for some, something a little stronger perhaps for others. So here are some of my recommendations for using up those two and a half hours before we meet once more in front of the Black and White House and the Bull (why can I see one or two red faces at the mention of this animal; perhaps it's a slight excess of red wine?)

So, in no particular order:

Hereford cathedral and the Mappa Mundi

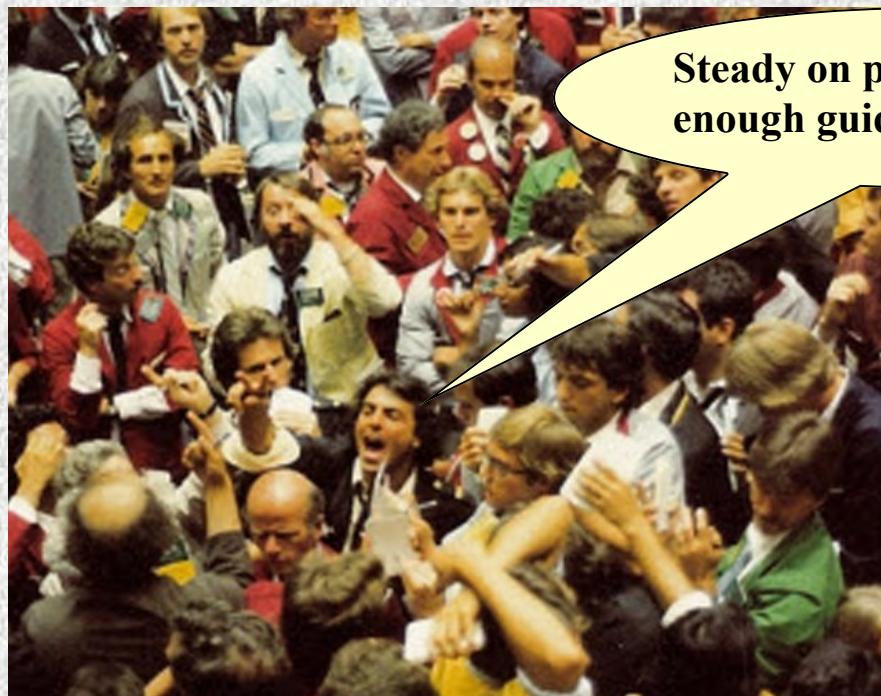

Cider Museum (sorry, no wine or coffee museum)

Waterworks museum (perhaps for those who need to 'dry-out' a little?)

Hereford Museum and Art Gallery one for the cognoscenti perhaps

And of course you can just wander around and look at the quaint streets and artisan shops

I have prepared a small guide for each of these attractions. Decide what you want to do and collect the appropriate guide from me. The shops I leave you to find for yourself, I am sure that you already have enough experience of doing so.

Steady on please, I have enough guides for everyone

And for the very fit .....
The Grand Bike Tour of Hereford.

Mind you, it's two and a half hours so I somehow think that this might be a step too far for most of us today especially after such a goof lunch! Besides which you have to book in advance, and I thought the likelihood of anyone wanting to do that TODAY was pretty remote. Am I right or not?